Hundreds of new University of the Incarnate Word students—mostly freshmen—experienced the 14th annual pinning ceremony Thursday, Aug. 23, in Alice McDermott Convocation Center.

“You belong here and you are in the right place,” Thomas M. Evans, UIW president, told the Class of 2022. Evans spoke about his personal experience going into his first year as president last year, his freshman year at college, pointing out that he met his wife, Lisa, in a freshman class. Then he invited her to stage, pinned her with a UIW pin, and got a kiss.

“I loved the part when he pinned my wife, it was very thoughtful,” biology major Angela Nicole Moreno said. “I felt like I was at home and there’s no follow-up bill that you have to pay a $10 fee to be seen outside doctor. That’s not a well-known insurance you run into issues at their personal doctor’s office.

“Many people, even in the doc’s office, don’t understand how TPAs work as administrators and understand that we’re self-funded just like we were when we had the other insurance companies,” said Ball. “But they don’t recognize the name so now they’re asking people to pay cash or they’re not able to go to their past providers.”

Due to this shift in insurance, UIW has arranged a contract with University of Texas Health Science Center to accept Gilsbar. This means UIW can refer seriously ill patients to neurologists or dermatologists, for example, by calling UT Health Science Center and sending them to the appropriate physician.

But it’s a tough change because a lot of people have been going to the same doctor for a long time and now suddenly their doctor’s office is not taking their insurance,” Bell said. “So now they have the option to come here for $10 as well.

Students with Consolidated Health Plan (CHP) insurance are also expected to pay a $10 co-pay when visiting Health Services. Students with other forms of insurance will pay the amount of their usual co-pay when visiting an outside doctor.

If a student cannot pay at their appointment, they will not be turned away, Bell said. “You can pay your copay later. We’re working with (the university) to possibly put it on your account. The other thing is that the university will be applying a student discount so there won’t be any balance billing or leftover billing because a student discount will be applied as well.”

Volunteers can help the University of the Incarnate Word carry on its annual “Light the Way” holiday tradition several ways, a planner says. Students can earn valuable community service hours required for graduation by helping to replace discarded and broken bulbs 1-3 p.m. every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday this month in the Student Engagement Center.

“Stay for as long or little as you can,” said Ashley Davis, special events coordinator for the sponsoring Office of Communications and Marketing.

In October, the annual Display Board Contest is set for the 13th, a Saturday. “All approved student organizations are invited to participate as teams in this annual tradition to design and paint a board that will be displayed throughout campus during the holidays,” Davis said. The top three winning teams will receive cash prizes. Awards for Most Mission Friendly Design, Best Interpretation of Light the Way and People’s Choice will also be given out.

Students who wish to participate should register online at lightthewaysa.com/display-board-contest/ or via CardinalSync before Oct. 1. Students also may volunteer during the Light the Way Holiday Festival scheduled 3-9 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17.

“This year’s event will offer an earlier start time to enjoy over a dozen food trucks, more than 40 vendors in the Holiday Shoppe, an even larger kids’ area and a chance to take photos with Santa and Red (the Cardinal’s mascot),” Davis said.

“Light the Way” festivities will start earlier Nov. 17, running from 3 to 9 p.m.

“I love that the university has started offering this earlier. It’s a nice.”

“Stay for as long or little as you can,” said Ashley Davis, special events coordinator for the sponsoring Office of Communications and Marketing.

In October, the annual Display Board Contest is set for the 13th, a Saturday. “All approved student organizations are invited to participate as teams in this annual tradition to design and paint a board that will be displayed throughout campus during the holidays,” Davis said. The top three winning teams will receive cash prizes. Awards for Most Mission Friendly Design, Best Interpretation of Light the Way and People’s Choice will also be given out.

Students who wish to participate should register online at lightthewaysa.com/display-board-contest/ or via CardinalSync before Oct. 1. Students also may volunteer during the Light the Way Holiday Festival scheduled 3-9 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17.

“This year’s event will offer an earlier start time to enjoy over a dozen food trucks, more than 40 vendors in the Holiday Shoppe, an even larger kids’ area and a chance to take photos with Santa and Red (the Cardinal’s mascot),” Davis said.

“Light the Way” festivities will start earlier Nov. 17, running from 3 to 9 p.m.
Faculty and student volunteers are gearing up for the "Meet the Mission" community service effort Friday, Sept. 14. "I can tell you we have lots of fun stuff this year for the (mission)," said Dr. Betsy Leverett. As director of the Office of Biochemistry at UIW and key planner for the mission where students can volunteer, community service hours toward the 45 required for graduation are planned.

Activities include:

- Meal service with the homeless, with the elderly, or with disabled adults
- Sorting and organizing donations of food or clothing
- Landscaping or gardening at community and school gardens
- Cleaning and maintenance work (smaller groups) at a women's shelter or a mission gorto
- Grounds work in local parks
- Odd jobs and dog bathing at a rescue shelter in Von Ormy

The volunteers – led by faculty – will airlift new cases into the McDermott Convocation Center, Leverett said. Then the staff will have two weeks before one a.m. and the second before 9.

"The outdoor projects are generally started earlier in the day" to reduce heat-related issues, she said.

"We provide breakfast, tacos, water, and pizza for lunch (when they return)," Leverett.

When students reconvene with their faculty group leaders for lunch, there is time spent giving reflections.

FYI: Faculty sign-up: http://www.uex.edu/meetthemission/employee.html

Student sign-up: http://www.uex.edu/meetthemission/student.html

Cont. from page 1

The crew, urged on by the cheers of the crowd, gets pinned and gets ready to go. They are immediately involved in activities as well, but not necessarily those of the university, as class.

New students get pinned

Cont. from page 1

The crowd, urging them to be involved in activities as well, is not always successful. Although UW is a Catholic-based university, students of other faiths are welcome, Piper said. "If someone practicing Catholicism, Islam or no religion at all, are encouraged to grow in their faith, she said.

"The campus is filled with different beliefs and cultures," vision science major Ali Salhabli. "The faculty and staff are very sentive when speaking about religion, to make sure that we are all made to feel comfortable not believing in the same religion."
Career Services kicked off the semester with a Federal Work-Study & Part-Time Job Fair on Tuesday, Aug. 28, for all University of the Incarnate Word students searching for networking and a job.

The four-and-a-half hour event took place in the Student Engagement Center at the University of the Incarnate Word during the first week of school.

Career Services Director Jessica Lane Wilson was the facilitator of the event and was assisted by the Campus Services team and volunteers from other departments to put on this event.

“We want to make sure that our students are preparing for their future from the very beginning it starts,” Wilson said. “They have to know the skills that are necessary so that they are successful when it comes to getting a job when they’re done here at graduation time.”

Part-time job fair, full-time career fairs, all-majors fairs and federal work-study fairs occur throughout the academic year. Wilson said they are hoping to begin internship fairs and specific-program fairs.

Along with on-campus job opportunities, the first fair of the semester brought in employees from off-campus businesses handling hospitality, medical occupations, restaurant help and sales.

Martha Beller, 26, was at the fair advertising Down on Grayson, described as “a casual, modern-American restaurant serving a mixture of classic and contemporary dishes in a fresh and fun atmosphere” according to their website.

“Actually, we’ve had quite a few people stop at our booth already. I thought it was going to be a little bit busier than it was, but I’m sure if enough people didn’t get out on time or what-not.”

Although Career Services worked diligently on promotion, Wilson said she also noticed a small turnout from the students.

“I would like to see continued collaboration and support from faculty encouraging students on the importance of career planning and career readiness,” she said.

On the opposite side, there was a large employer turnout. Wilson said they would need to move more space next year.

Other than hosting the fair, Career Services wanted to help students while at the event.

For example, if a student was not professionally dressed for the fair, Career Services had the “Cardinal Closet” on standby.

Professional wear was donated to the Cardinal Closet by staff and outside organizations for students to “rent” during the career fair. This proved convenient for those who had on-the-spot interviews.

Additionally, students and employees were asked to fill out surveys upon exiting the fair to review what went well or what needed improvements for the next fair.

Some students were able to find job opportunities pertaining to their career path and schedule.

Freshman Vanessa Apodaca, who is studying nursing, said she found a part-time job opportunity as a medical scribe.

Business marketing major Kimberly Garcez said she came looking for an on-campus part-time job, but was surprised to find off-campusc jobs, too. She found a few on-campus office jobs that coincided with her schedule.

Garcez was appreciative of the job fair.

“T’m glad because it’s really hard to find a job especially when you have to wait for them to hire you and get your application and everything,” Garcez said. “Here, it’s like sometimes some of them are like, ‘OK, if you have a resume we can talk’ or ‘If you fill out the application and bring it to me right now, we can process everything and get you somewhere.’ It’s a lot faster than having to put in an application and wait to see what they tell you. You’re wasting time trying to find out and everything.”

Wilson said Career Services plans to continue helping students in reaching their career goals.

“We really encourage our students to come and participate and be a part of something that is going to help them with their future to be successful.”

---

Panelists to share Etting legacy

Women’s Global Connection and the Etting Center for Civic Leadership and Sustainability will remember Sister Dot Etting, a woman who had a major hand in starting both, at noon Wednesday, Sept. 12.

The late Dorothy “Dot” Etting, who was a professor in the Debrun School of Education, is the focus of “Remember Sister Dot’s Visions, Career and Civic Legacy for the Future,” a program that will be in Rooms 2031-32 of the Student Proviment Center at the University of the Incarnate Word.

Colleagues who knew Etting, co-founder of WGC, will talk about her impact and vision for a college that is second to none.

Sister Martha Ann Kirk, a religious studies professor at UW, will moderate Speakers include Sister Helena Mo-ahan, a former UW charcellor and legal counsel; Dr. Sherry Herbert, a professor of education at Drew; Dr. Lisa Uribe, WGC director; Dr. Kevin Vichcales, associate provost; and Dean of the College of Humanities, Arts and Social Services; Dr. Ric Gonzaelez, Etting director; Yesenia Caloca, Etting’s campus community service webolizer; Bobby San Martin, center coordinator; and Teofilio Reyes, Etting’s community outreach coordinator.

A light lunch will be served. Those planning to attend and eat lunch should RSVP caloca@uiwtx.edu.

---

‘Constitution Day' looks at government’s role Sept. 18

The role of local government is going to be the focus of a Constitution Day address at 6 p.m. Sept. 18 at the University of the Incarnate Word.

Since 2005, federal law requires educational institutions receiving federal funds to observe Constitution Day commemorating the signing of Constitution on Sept. 17, 1787.

The speaker, Ben K. Keathley, a member of the Chesterfield (Mo.) City Council, will make his presentation in J.E. and L.E. Mabee Library Auditorium.

Keathley, born and raised in his hometown Chesterfield near St. Louis, is “going to talk about the role of local government in our constitutional tradition based on some of his experiences as a young representative,” according to a statement from the cosponsoring Department of Political Science and the College of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences.

Keathley earned NCAA Academic All-Conference honors while playing baseball at Knox College in Galesburg, Ill., where he earned a bachelor’s degree. In 2013, he graduated from Syracuse University College of Law where he was vice president of his class and the recipient of the Student Bar Association’s Distinguished Service Award.

While working as a student attorney at Syracus Legal Clinic, Keathley represented clients on federal tax issues, bankruptcies, and immigration matters. He began his career with a civil litigation firm in downtown St. Louis representing clients on insurance contract disputes. His areas of focus include immi-igration, civil litigation, and advising small businesses and startups.

Keathley is also a graduate of the Maxwell School of Public Affairs at Syracuse, where the Maxwell School is ranked number one in top-ranked public affairs school in the nation – and serves on the Environmental Committee for the City of Chesterfield.
Center schedules faculty development workshops

The Center for Teaching and Learning at the University of the Incarnate Word - based in AD 212 – has planned a number of workshops this fall to help faculty.

Most of the hourlong topical areas are in the center, unless otherwise noted for the Student Engagement Center. Many feature refreshments and door prizes as incentives. And a few add stipends.

Using “Poll Everywhere” — a well-known student response system for which UIW now has a site license – also will offer walk-in sessions with Dr. Susan Hall, the center director, and Terry Peak of Instructional Technology Services. These systems allow instructors to pose questions to a class, which students respond individually using their phones or other devices, thus increasing two-way communication.

Participants in each session will participate in a poll to see how a poll is conducted, and discuss good practices in using student response systems for low-stakes assessment. Participants should bring a digital device from noon Oct. 12 to 1 p.m., and noon Oct. 3 to 2 p.m. to Oct. 23, 5 and 6 p.m. Dec. 6. Online sessions using Zoom will be available, visit https://hall@uiwtx.edu and workshop supplies.” For stipends for part-time faculty members, visit https://www.uiw.edu/ctl/.

We will tailor the charrette game, discuss possible applications to their classes, and provide feedback with our upcoming planned events. Chaperon, a cybersecurity systems major hailing from Masami Aomori-Shi, Japan, wants “to bring fun events for everyone that are enjoyable for all students.” Zuriga, a San Antonio native who is majoring in communication arts with a concentration in communication studies, said he wants to “create memories and start new traditions.”

Having “more people attend our events” is the goal of Ponca, a communication arts major from San Antonio who is concentrating in media production.

Graphic design major Mario Rodriguez, a graphic design major from Del Rio, wants to ensure “all UIW students attend our events and have a great experience.”

Most of the eight Campus Activities Board leaders for the 2018-19 program year are newcomers to their paid positions as campus events planners who want more students to participate. However, Dani Delgado, last year’s director of internal affairs, will lead the group as this year’s president. Delgado, a biology major from San Antonio, said his goal with CAB is “to bring more events for our students to enjoy and to increase our participants.”

Another veteran, Anita Kadaru, a government major from Houston, is returning for her third run as director of external affairs. “I’m not sure if my goals for the Campus Activities Board will come to fruition this season but I’d like to facilitate more ‘edutainment,’” Kadaru said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Kaduru said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Kaduru said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Kaduru said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Kaduru said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Katdrau said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Kaduru said. “Students should be more ‘edutainment,’” Kadurr.

Newcomers include Nikila Royal, director of administration; David De La Fuente, director of operations; Aimilina Chaperon, director of finances; Armando Zuriga, director of internal affairs; Alson Ponc, director of communications, and Mario Rodriguez, director of marketing.

Royal, a pre-pharmacy major from Atlanta, wants to “increase the number of students that attend our events,” De La Fuente, a Bandera native working on a master’s degree in education with a concentration in adult education, plans to “promote our events so that we can get more student engagement for our upcoming planned events.”

Chaperon, a cybersecurity systems major hailing from Masami Aomori-Shi, Japan, wants “to bring fun events for everyone that are enjoyable for all students.” Zuriga, a San Antonio native who is majoring in communication arts with a concentration in communication studies, said he wants to “create memories and start new traditions.”

Having “more people attend our events” is the goal of Ponca, a communication arts major from San Antonio who is concentrating in media production.

Graphic design major Mario Rodriguez, a graphic design major from Del Rio, wants to ensure “all UIW students attend our events and have a great experience.”

FYI: “Save the Date” events for the Campus Activities Board is planning this fall include:

- Sept. 12: Alamo pary, 6-9 p.m.
- Oct. 23: Ghouls Night Out, 6-9 p.m.
- Nov. 14: Homecoming, 6:30 p.m.
- Dec. 5: Treat Yo Self, 11 a.m.-2 p.m.
Women’s Global Connection links UIW with world

By Nicole Heg/Special to the Logos

The Etting Center for Civic Leadership & Sustainability has selected five University of the Incarnate Word students as Cardinal Community leaders for the 2018-19 academic year.

The new leaders include Selena Casanova, an international business major from San Antonio; Deandrea De Leon, a vision science major from San Antonio; Kyana Gayden, an international business and accounting major from San Antonio; Maria Marruflo, a biochemistry major from San Antonio; and Camila M凌晨o, a communication arts major major from Dallas.

Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word missionary; Dr. Denise Kroho of UIW’s School of Graduate Research; and community members Vivian Vance and Edith Ausburn.

The first group worked with women on improving family wellness and women’s small businesses as well as holding group organizational leadership training for members of the women’s collectives known as the Bukoba Women’s Empowerment Association (BUWEA), in Tanzania, and the Women in Water and Natural Resources Conservation (WWANC), in Kenya. The first group’s work included the development of nutritional practices to build health and reduce disease.

The second group limited its work to Tanzania, focusing mainly on scientifically based nutrition practices to build health and reduce disease.

The top five UIW doctoral students named by the late Dorothy Ettling Center names five Cardinal Community leaders.

Children in Africa benefit from Women’s Global Connection summer immersion trips involving volunteers from the University of the Incarnate Word.

Women’s Global Connection links UIW with world

By Nicole Heg/Special to the Logos

The Etting Center for Civic Leadership & Sustainability has selected five University of the Incarnate Word students as Cardinal Community leaders for the 2018-19 academic year.

The new leaders include Selena Casanova, an international business major from San Antonio; Deandrea De Leon, a vision science major from San Antonio; Kyana Gayden, an international business and accounting major from San Antonio; Maria Marruflo, a biochemistry major from San Antonio; and Camila M凌晨o, a communication arts major major from Dallas.

Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word missionary; Dr. Denise Kroho of UIW’s School of Graduate Research; and community members Vivian Vance and Edith Ausburn.

The first group worked with women on improving family wellness and women’s small businesses as well as holding group organizational leadership training for members of the women’s collectives known as the Bukoba Women’s Empowerment Association (BUWEA), in Tanzania, and the Women in Water and Natural Resources Conservation (WWANC), in Kenya. The first group’s work included the development of nutritional practices to build health and reduce disease.

The second group limited its work to Tanzania, focusing mainly on scientifically based nutrition practices to build health and reduce disease.

The top five UIW doctoral students named by the late Dorothy Ettling Center names five Cardinal Community leaders.

Children in Africa benefit from Women’s Global Connection summer immersion trips involving volunteers from the University of the Incarnate Word.
I cannot remember a time when a teacher, professor or classroom didn’t praise characters for their quietness.

Many teachers/professors have tried different tactics to make me talk more, and in which case I smile to myself because my quietness could be because of my shyness or my attentiveness.

I have spoken more than the years have gone by. I was a sophomore in a freshman high school – about six or more months after the school year start- ed. I decided to finally talk at the lunch table I always sat at (because those people were nice enough to let me sit there and didn’t question my quietness).

I didn’t say much in the classes I took, and I thought I would sit in the same spot every day and listen to what they were saying. They knew I was in their grade, and that was enough for them to welcome me at their table.

I finally wanted to join the conver- sation because I was comfortable enough to talk to those nice girls – who later became my group of friends – but when I spoke they just stared at me. Mouths opened, and intense stares aimed towards me if I had spoken too much.

The whole table didn’t say a word, then one girl said, “Oh my God! She speaks! I didn’t know you had a voice! I thought you were mute!” She was not being funny; she was serious.

More than half of the girls that didn’t have me in their classes. I was used to being the person who didn’t say anything. Not for a lack of ideas, or lack of wanting to partici- pate; it is just so natural to not talk and listen in class.

My way of participating is active lis- tening and taking notes. I didn’t care if my participation point didn’t rack up because I knew I was learning. That was why I went to school, but what about college?

Well, my first year I didn’t speak to anyone one-on-one with the professors. And that was only if it was necessary. I could not tell you anyone’s name from a class or name a single student I spoke to. But I didn’t fully re- alize this until the end of the second semester.

I knew I missed having friends and sitting alone every day got boring. Eventually, I found people to talk to and they made school more enjoy- able for me.

Still, professors have gone out of their way to let me know they thought I was smart. “Don’t worry. We are going to break you out of that shell.”

Those messages tend to make me laugh on the inside, but if inappropri- ately timed have made me extremely upset. Who said I wanted to talk more, and who said I didn’t partici- pate?

Who declared all good students must be talkative and outspoken? I take no pride in being outspoken, but I consider myself a good student with other traits to offer. Why be better than others? I am already in the position I was taught to speak up only because my personality was not to the liking of someone else.

I don’t speak up because I feel like those are needed topics. “It is so infrangible as it may be” because I don’t want to hear another teacher tell me I am too quiet.

I would rather have my words mean something than talk too much and have too much noise.

Any extra “participation” from me is a learned behavior I would happily discard if I knew I would not be told – even more so than I am now – that I am too quiet.

I do enjoy speaking in class when the time is right, and class participa- tion is a great and important thing!

I do want to work on being more heard in class, but probably not to the extent that many people wish me to be. If I notice I feel more shy than usual, then I take note of it and re- flect on it to make sure I work on my participation. I am quiet, and I am shy, but I want to feel like being myself is good enough.

E-mail Ramirez at qaramire@stu- dent.uiwtx.edu

Don’t take my quietness for weakness

Queen Ramirez / EDITOR

OPINION

PAGE 6  |  AUG. - SEPT. 2018

Five Vowels: ‘E’ for breathe

Tell me why it’s the second week of school and I’m exhausted. We had Labor Day off and I don’t feel rested. Are you feeling the same way? If not, please share your skills with me. This column is a prime example of where I wish I could have had this done a few days ago but didn’t because I was working on another story.

I still have a bulletin to make for University Mission & Ministry which is due the week after Labor Day. I cut “E” out the side, loyally following my fellow Logos editors, chap- ters to read for class, group projects and even the extent of what I want to do or what I don’t want to do. I have a voice.

With that mindset I must also remember while “e” doesn’t have va- cation days, I do. That doesn’t mean I seclude myself for a month from all civilization; it simply means there’s great:

I’m not expected to be perfect, so why try to be? It’s OK to take time to breathe. I guess I just have to remind my- self I’m not an “e” and I’ll never be. My friends, don’t stay stuck on “e.” “E” can get used over and over with the people and different jobs, I don’t have my words mean nothing. If I don’t want to hear another teacher tell me I am too quiet.

I don’t want to work on being more heard in class, but probably not to the extent that many people wish me to be. If I notice I feel more shy than usual, then I take note of it and re- flect on it to make sure I work on my participation. I am quiet, and I am shy, but I want to feel like being myself is good enough.

E-mail Ramirez at qaramire@stu- dent.uiwtx.edu

Five Vowels: ‘E’ for breathe

Tell me why it’s the second week of school and I’m exhausted. We had Labor Day off and I don’t feel rested. Are you feeling the same way? If not, please share your skills with me. This column is a prime example of where I wish I could have had this done a few days ago but didn’t because I was working on another story.

I still have a bulletin to make for University Mission & Ministry which is due the week after Labor Day. I cut “E” out the side, loyally following my fellow Logos editors, chap- ters to read for class, group projects and even the extent of what I want to do or what I don’t want to do. I have a voice.

With that mindset I must also remember while “e” doesn’t have va- cation days, I do. That doesn’t mean I seclude myself for a month from all civilization; it simply means there’s great:

I’m not expected to be perfect, so why try to be? It’s OK to take time to breathe. I guess I just have to remind my- self I’m not an “e” and I’ll never be. My friends, don’t stay stuck on “e.” “E” can get used over and over with the people and different jobs, I don’t have my words mean nothing. If I don’t want to hear another teacher tell me I am too quiet.

I don’t want to work on being more heard in class, but probably not to the extent that many people wish me to be. If I notice I feel more shy than usual, then I take note of it and re- flect on it to make sure I work on my participation. I am quiet, and I am shy, but I want to feel like being myself is good enough.
Congressman: Investing in education makes America truly great

By U.S. Rep. Lloyd Doggett

AUG. 29, 2019 | PAGE 7

Graves, then 26 years old and without an attorney, was certain his inno- cence was obvious. He did not know the victims, he had no knowledge of the crime, he had an airtight alibi with witnesses and no physical evi- dence linked him to the crime scene. Yet he was incarcerated, then sentenced to death, and, over the course of 12 years on death row, given two execution dates. He was not freed for 18 years, two months, four days.

Graves’s other case that challenges our basic belief in the rule of law and equal justice, two bedrock principles upon which the nation was founded and essential safeguards to personal liberty and freedom. Our common understanding of these principles are that all individuals are equal before the law, and that justice is blind, meaning personal characteristics and station in life are not factors in determining legal outcomes. Graves’s case illustrates the sad reality that not all individuals are equal before the law and that justice can be elusive. Moreover, individuals charged with crimes have an inherent right to a fair trial based on the rule of law and not their wealth, status or corporate interests over those of the community they seek to serve. This reality should animate recog- nition of any one of them.

Graves and I have seen firsthand the result of the law sometimes depending on the willingness of individuals to risk punishment in pursuit of justice. In this case, Graves was pressured to accept a plea deal to avoid a death sentence, which he refused as what reasonable individual would accept such an unjust outcome? We shared Catholic intellectual tradition obliges us to live up to two fundamental principles: that the search for truth in all aspects of life extends to the ultimate search for truth that animates faith; and, second, that faith is a catalysis for inquiry, as faith seeks to understand itself and its relationship to every dimension of life. Graves’s faith in God led him to risk all in search of justice. His exam- ple calls to all of us to do the same in seeking just solutions to the many problems that animate civic life. E-mail Vickhales, dean of the College of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences Speaker Series is produced by Antonio Graves to the UIW community on Wednesday, Sept. 12, at 7 p.m. in the UIW Convocation Center.

The CHASS Distinguished Speaker Series seeks to provide an avenue for the exploration of relevant top- ics impacting our community and dialogue on how individuals may become concerned and enlightened citizens in the spirit of the mission of the university.

In September of 1992, a grand- mother, a teenage girl, and four children under the age of 10 were beaten and stabbed to death in Somerville, Texas. The perpetrator set the house on fire to cover his tracks, deepening the heinousness of the crime and rocking the tiny commun- ity to its core. Authorities used intense public pressure were eager to make an arrest. Five days later, Anthony Graves was in custody.

The Logos office is at 227 D. The advisee may be reached at (210) 263-6004 or AliaHasan@uiw.edu. The editor may be reached at The Logos or e-mail queenramirez@uiwtx.eu. The postal address is 4301 Broadway, CPO 494, San Antonio, Texas 78209. The web page URL is http://www.uiw.edu/logos/ and interactive Logos is http://www.sis.uiw.edu. The Logos is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press and Texas Intercollegiate Press Association.
Women’s golf scores new coach, achievement

Summer has been the memora- ble for the women’s golf team at the Uni- versity of the Incar- nate Word. Current head coach Allison Howarth became head coach in June, stating the team’s goal was “becoming competitive in every tournament we play.” In July, UIW senior Gracie Aday won the Metroplex Amateur Open, host- ed by Bridlewood Country Club in Flower Mound, Texas. Aday, who was tied for the lead, shot a one-un- der-par 71 on the strength of six birdies in the final round, finishing five strokes ahead of her nearest competitor. This month, with the release of the Cardinals’ 2018-19 fall and spring schedules, Howarth revealed her strat- egy for reaching the team’s objective: UIW will compete against top-flight opponents but with the exception of an opening tournament in Utah — will do so on Texas courses that are familiar to its golfers. Aday’s Texas win may be a sign of what’s to come for the player and the team. “I’ve been working really hard this summer and it paid off (at the Bridlewood tour- nament),” Aday, a communi- cations major from the Woodlands, Texas, said after her win. “I’m really looking for- ward to this new season because of our new coach and a couple new players. I plan to keep impro- ving my game this sum- mer and this next season.” “Overall, it’s a great win for Gracie,” Howarth said. “She’s been working on her short game a lot this summer and it really showed (at Bridle- wood). It’s great momentum going into the fall season and hopefully we can cap- italize on all the hard work that has been put in this summer.”

Men’s soccer starts season with losses

The men’s soccer team is looking for its first win at home after starting the season with losses in California against St. Mary’s and Berkeley and returning to Texas against Southern Methodist University in Dallas. A former UIW star soccer player who had been serving as an assistant coach for the team now is in charge. Chris Fidler, who was entering his fifth season as an assistant coach, was named interim head coach in early August with the resignation of Vince Martinez.

In announcing Martinez’s retirement, Dr. Brian Wickstrom, UIW’s director of athletics, said, “I’m sad Vince has decided to move on. He has done a great job of building the program, and he was instrumental in helping us transition from Division II to Division I. We wish him nothing but the best in his future endeavors, and we hope he stays in contact to watch the program he built forever grateful for the opportunity I was given to coach and this next season.”

In a farewell statement, Martinez said: “I will be forever grateful for the opportunity I was given here at UIW, and for the incredible people I have had the fortune to both meet and work with along the way. I am confident Brian Wickstrom and athletic administration will continue to give men’s soccer the support it needs to succeed. I will miss the players, this great campus and the beautiful city of San Antonio greatly. I leave this program with a huge amount of optimism, both for the future of UIW men’s soccer, and also for the next chapter of my journey.”

Martinez’s former assistant, Fidler, played two years for UIW, earning a master’s degree in sports management. He was 2011 Daktronics South Central Region Player of the Year, Lone Star Conference Academic Player of the Year as well as earning All-American honorable mention along with four other awards his senior year. He recorded 16 shutouts in his career and holds a UIW record with a 0.62 GAA from the 2011 season.

A native of Bramhall, Cheshire, England, Fidler first came aboard as a volunteer assistant in 2012, but then became a full-time assistant coach and goalkeeper trainer in the summer of 2013. As an assistant, he has successfully recruited several British players as well as recruits from Holland, Spain and France. Off campus, he has been serv- ing as senior program director of goalkeeping for the San Antonio United Soccer Club.
Football looks for win after first loss

Alma Solis / SPORTS EDITOR

The football team hopes to win its first game of the season this Saturday under its new head coach, Eric Morris, after losing last weekend’s opener 62-30 to New Mexico.

The University of the Incarnate Word’s Cardinals face the University of North Texas in Denton at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 8.

This past Saturday, the Cardinals struck first with a touchdown by freshman quarterback Jon Copeland from Argyle, Texas, to put UIW up 7-0. New Mexico’s Lobos quickly answered with a touchdown of their own to tie the score at 7-7. But the Lobos didn’t stop there -- scoring three more touchdowns to end the first quarter up 28-7. The Cardinals looked to make a comeback in the second quarter when running back Ra’Quanne Dickens, a senior from Seminole, Fla., rushed 90 yards to cut the lead to 28-13 and followed that with a field goal by senior punter-kicker Cody Seidel, of Keller, Texas, making the score 28-16. UIW’s defense held the Lobos to one touchdown in the second quarter. At halftime, the Lobos led 35-16.

In the third quarter, the Lobos’ two touchdowns and the Cardinals’ struggle to get past the first down helped to put New Mexico up 48-16. New Mexico immediately went to work in the fourth quarter with an eight-play, 39-yard touchdown to put the Lobos up 55-16. The Cardinals answered with a six-play, 78-yard touchdown to cut the deficit to 55-23. The Lobos tackled on to the lead with three minutes left in the game, making the score 62-23. The Cardinals cut their deficit to 62-30 with less than a minute in the game when freshman wide receiver Brandon McDuffie of San Antonio recovered a fumble.

In Copeland’s first start as a Cardinal, he successfully completed 17 passes for 328 yards and a touchdown. Phillip Baptiste, a senior wide receiver from Fort Worth, led the team with six receptions for 112 receiving yards and a touchdown. Dickens led the team with 110 rushing yards, including a 90-yard touchdown. Senior inside linebacker West Lambert of Wimberly, Texas, led the team defensively with 10 total tackles. Silas Stewart, senior inside linebacker, also contributed with nine tackles.

The team ended the night with 322 passing yards and 244 rushing yards for a total of 566 yards.

Morris said he was pleased with Copeland’s performance in his first collegiate game.

“I was happy with how Copeland played today,” Morris said. “He saw the field really well.”

As for improvements, Morris said, “On offense, we sputtered a couple times on penalties or self-inflicted wounds. That’s something we’ve got to get over in a hurry or we’re not going to be as good as we know we can be.”

Morris was pleased with how his quickly his offense worked.

“Anytime we can get a first down or a big play, we start moving fast,” Morris said.
The Predator
Rated: R
Genre: Action/Adventure
Starring: Boyd Holbrook, Trevante Rhodes, Jacob Tremblay

The Nun
Rated: R
Genre: Horror
Starring: John Ortiz, Taissa Farmiga, Jonas Bloquet

Peppermint
Rated: R
Genre: Drama
Starring: Anna Lively, Anna Demián

Lizzie
Rated: NR
Genre: Drama
Starring: Blake Lively, Anna Demián

A Simple Favor
Rated: NR
Genre: Drama
Starring: Keira Knightly, Adam Scott

Sep. 14

A Simple Favor
Starring: Blaire Smoak, Madison Marsh

The Predator
Starring: Boyd Holbrook, Trevante Rhodes, Jacob Tremblay

White Boy Rick
Rated: R
Genre: Crime/Drama
Starring: Matthew McConaughey, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Rory Cochrane

Lizzie
Rated: R
Genre: Biography/ Crime
Starring: Kristen Stewart, Chloë Sevigny, Kim Dickens

Colette
Rated: NR
Genre: Drama
Starring: Keira Knightly

MOVIES OF THE MONTH

Compiled by Bethany Melendez / STAFF

Sept. 7

The Nun
Rated: R
Genre: Horror/Thriller
Starring: Demián Bichir, Taisaa Farmiga, Jonas Bloquet

Peppermint
Rated: R
Genre: Action
Starring: Jennifer Garner, John Gallagher Jr., John Ortiz

Sept. 14

A Simple Favor
Starring: Blaire Smoak, Madison Marsh

The Predator
Starring: Boyd Holbrook, Trevante Rhodes, Jacob Tremblay

White Boy Rick
Rated: R
Genre: Crime/Drama
Starring: Matthew McConaughey, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Rory Cochrane

Lizzie
Rated: R
Genre: Biography/ Crime
Starring: Kristen Stewart, Chloë Sevigny, Kim Dickens

Colette
Rated: NR
Genre: Drama
Starring: Keira Knightly

Review: Students’ zombie flick distinctly San Antonian ‘B’ movie

J.E. and L.E. Mabee Library is showcasing audio-visual librarian Farhad Moskiri’s film series through three documentary presentations this fall. “Farhad's Film Series” kicks off 2-4 p.m. Sept. 27 with “Truth in numbers: Everything, according to Wikipedia,” in Library Room 221. The 2010 film, running 85 minutes, focuses on Wikipedia, the well-known free internet encyclopedia, created and edited by volunteers around the world and hosted by the Wikimedia Foundation. “After viewing this film, you will never look at Wikipedia the same way,” states a flier Moskiri released, adding that filmmakers Scott Grosserman and Nic Hill “engagingly explore the history and cultural implications of one of the most referenced sites on the Web.” The librarian started his film series in the spring semester of 2014. “I show three documentaries/educational films each semester,” Moskiri said. “The library's feature films (movies) collection do not have PPR (Public Performance Rights), so I cannot show movies. "My philosophy in doing this series is to show films on current issues. Issues that are in the news and everyone is talking about. Also, I show films about different cultures and diversity issues. The attendance differs from show to show. Sometimes a faculty (member) brings his/her whole class to the show since the film is related to his/her course. Sometimes a few people show up.” Originally from Tehran, Iran, Moskiri holds a bachelor’s degree in history from University of Shiraz, Iran – formerly Pahlavi University, a sister university of Kent State University in Ohio. "My main hobby is research on Richard Wagner's operas. I've been researching on Wagner for more than 30 years now. I've published several articles on Wagner in Iran. People who know me call me "Wagner maniac.""
WORD SEARCH

H U R R I C A N E E X E S
S Q Y R Z A P F U Q G X I
F N O I S S I M U L O C Y
O E F D X L B E L R A I D
S L F V A B L A G L L T U
B A I H F P B A K U W E T
N N L S Z T W D B R V D S
S I P U E S Z I J T P T O
H D V K V A X V G R O K L
S R S W D P C A M Z O P
G A Y F E S T R O P S J F
B C S D L L A F E C Y H L

RIDDLES

What rock group has four men who don’t sing?

This five letter word becomes shorter when you add two letters to it. What is it?

I stay in the corner but travel around the world. What am I?

What can you hold in your right hand but not in your left?

JUMBLE

duchoonwt
tkqebruraac feseofn
belfmu

ANSWERS:

GAME DAY
Donut you Wanna go to Germany!? European Study Center Information Session & FREE DOUGHNUTS
9-11 a.m.
Student Engagement Center (SEC) Foyer
Chat with ESC representatives while enjoying doughnuts

Around the World in 60 Minutes
Noon-1 p.m.
Student Engagement Center (SEC) Concourse
Meet UIW exchange students and learn about their native countries while engaging in fun activities

Parent Information Session
6-7 p.m.
International Conference Center (ICC), Boardroom 1
Invite your parents to learn more about study abroad and meet with the study abroad coordinator, study abroad alum and their families.

Passport Day
10a.m.-2p.m.
Student Engagement Center (SEC) Foyer
Save yourself time by bringing your passport application, passport photo, valid ID, proof of U.S. citizenship and cash or check of $145 (if a new applicant) or $110 (if a renewal) to the SEC where representatives from Houston will be available to collect them.

CHECK FACEBOOK FOR STUDY ABROAD UPDATES!